

BOOK SYNOPSIS

The Next Accreditation System (NAS) has changed the role residency program coordinators play in ensuring program accreditation. The Next Accreditation System Made Simple helps residency program coordinators implement components of the NAS and describes how the new survey process will affect their program in years to come. Expert Paige Rinehart, BS, C-TAGME, CPS, uses her experience of navigating the NAS to guide residency program coordinators through the process, helping to ensure facilities are prepared prior to a surveyor visit. Through this book, program coordinators will learn: The connection between the core competencies and Milestones How to convert current evaluations and committees to meet the requirements of the NAS How to enter relevant data into the ADS How to support the clinical competency committee and program evaluation committee How to help residents and faculty prepare for a CLER visit
